LOT 1065

A Nagaland Konyak tribe brass shaman's idol figure of a warrior, 12th-14th century. modelled standing unclothed but for a bead necklace with skull mask pendant, height 29cm. Provenance: the Alain Presencer Collection. Note: the Konyaks are a major Naga ethnic group native to the North-east Indian state of Nagaland.

Estimate: £800 - £1,200

Condition Report

In generally good condition commensurate with age.

Typical surface scratches and wear.

Numerous small casting 'holes' to legs and one to left of chest.

The two pins to base removed, 2 small lead pads added to aid stability and two screw holes to base where previously mounted. It does stand upright but is a little wobbly and would benefit from re-mounting.
