LOT 1012

A Chinese silvered bronze figure of a guardian, Northern Wei dynasty (386-534 AD), with verdigris patination, the slender figure modelled wearing a long robe and hands held together at the front, height 38cm, with a late Ming gilt bronze double lotus stand, height 9.5cm.

Provenance: the Alain Presencer Collection and the Richard Truscott Collection.

Estimate: £1,200 - £1,800

Condition Report

1012. The figure is in generally good condition with overall verdigris with some silvered areas visible as well. No significant damage or repairs. There is a horizontal stress crack to the back of the figure just below the robe hem line (approx. 8cm long). The gilt lotus bases with typical wear and verdigris patches all over.
