Condition Report

Both vases are in good condition overall with no cracks, chips or restoration. Both do have areas where the white body beneath the glaze is visible – it is worse on one of the vases, the white areas are visible through the main body and to the neck rims – please see the images on our website although due to the nature of the glaze these images don't show the full extent of the issue. The vase that has more white areas visible also has some rubbing to the gilding of the shoulders.

Both vases have some minor flakes/losses to the coral enamel, again slightly more on the vase which has more white patches.
