A Doulton Lambeth stoneware silver mounted jug and pair of matching beakers, dated 1877, decorated by George Tinworth, monogrammed, with white beaded scrolls centred by foliate medallions against a textured ground heightened with tall vertical brown leaves, the silver rims with Birmingham hallmarks, impressed and incised marks to bases, incised monogram mark to each piece amidst the decoration, height of jug 24cm, height of beakers 13cm.

Estimate: £150 - £250

Condition Report

The jug is in good condition overall with no chips or restoration, it has a faint minor hairline to the middle of the body on one side emanating from a small firing crack by one of the relief flowerheads - only noticeable on very close inspection.

Both beakers are also fundamentally in good condition with no restoration or chips, but both have a faint hairline visible to the interior - the first running approx 3cm vertically from the rim, the second running vertically for approximately 7cm around the middle area - once again, both tricky to see apart from on closer inspection.
