LOT 1868

A pair of clear cut glass lustres, early 20th century, of faceted trumpet shape on circular feet, hung with nine prismatic drops, height 23cm, together with another clear glass lustre with scalloped rim and knopped stem, height 29cm. Provenance: from the estate of a Sussex gentleman.

Estimate: £60 - £100

Condition Report

Pair - main body of both is in good condition overall with no damage or repairs, some typical scratches to the lower base where the drops hang but nothing untoward. The drops themselves are all present and also fundamentally in good condition with only minor typical nicks and very small chips, nothing terrible, and only noticeable on closer inspection.

Single - the top rim edge and edge of the foot both have small nicks and chips to their circumference, a bit noticeable around the top edge because of the way it is finished with 'pointy' sections. The main body is in good condition otherwise. The drops are all present and, as on the pair, have typical small nicks and maybe a few more small chips, but fundamentally nothing too terrible.
