LOT 1402

A Parian bust, late 19th century, modelled as the head and shoulders of a young girl with flowing hair wearing a quilted bonnet and large Byzantine cross or cross of Lorraine pendant, raised on a socle base, unmarked, height 36cm.

Estimate: £70 - £100

Condition Report

The bonnet has a sizable chip to the outer left corner almost just above the ear, it is not immediately apparent due to the nature of the design, and a much smaller chip to the underside of the right corner which is hardly noticeable.

The bust would probably benefit from a professional clean.

Otherwise in good condition.
