LOT 1420

A Nymphenburg white glazed porcelain figure group The Disturbed Sleeper, first half 20th century, based on the 18th century group modelled by Bustelli, modelled as a sleeping male figure leaning against an obelisk, a girl seated beside playing a musical instrument, with overall scroll moulded detail, impressed mark to base with incised numerals, height 23cm (minor faults).

Estimate: £80 - £120

Condition Report

In good condition overall with no significant damage or restoration.

The clothing of both the male and female has lots of ribbons which have small losses overall.

The tree branch has some minor losses to the leaves, one of which has remains of an old glued repair.
